For the sixth year, amazing Australians doing great things for the community have shared in $1 million in AMP Tomorrow Fund grants. In 2019, 37 individuals received grants from pool of 1,633 applicants.

These individuals – known as Tomorrow Makers – come from all walks of life and work in a wide range of fields – including art, technology, sport, science, social innovation, education, health, medicine and music. What they share is a desire to make a difference, either by creating something special or inspiring others.

Tomorrow Maker profiles and videos can be found on AMP’s Tomorrow Fund website from late 28 November.

AMP’s Tomorrow Fund is open to individuals of all ages, interests and abilities who are working towards a goal that will positively impact the community but need help to get there.

Since 2014, this AMP Foundation program has supported talented and innovative Australians with grants of up to $100,000. So far, $6 million in grants have been awarded to help Tomorrow Makers to take their projects and passions to the next level.

About the program
Launched in 2014, AMP’s Tomorrow Fund is run by the AMP Foundation, the philanthropic arm of AMP that has been supporting the Australian community since 1992.

In the past six years, the program has received more than 11,600 applications and grants have been awarded to 267 inspiring individuals – who we call AMP Tomorrow Makers. They’ve included artists, athletes, inventors, social innovators, scientists, dancers, disability advocates, musicians and medical researchers.

What is the aim of AMP’s Tomorrow Fund?
The AMP Tomorrow Fund aims to support talented, determined Australians of all ages who are working hard towards a goal that will benefit the community, but need help to take it to the next level. Designed to be accessible to people from all walks of life, the AMP Foundation believes it fills a funding gap.

How can the grants be used?
Grants of between $5,000 and $100,000 are awarded for a range of activities, including training, travel costs and research. The number and size of the grants are determined by the quality of applications.

Who can apply?
Australian citizens or permanent residents of all ages, interests and abilities can apply between early April and mid-May. Applicants are assessed by the AMP Foundation, subject experts and a final judging panel.

How do I apply for a grant?
Applications usually open in April and close in May (2020 dates TBC) but anyone can register their interest at ampstomorrowfund.com.au. The application process is simple if you are clear about your goal and can demonstrate you have put in a lot of work to get to this stage. While we appreciate people spreading the word, you can’t nominate others for a grant. Potential Tomorrow Makers must lodge their own applications.
